

Please don't relax the rules on the use of cell phones on planes. It is a bad idea. Besides the possible concern of safety, this just encourages the abuse we already face from the inconsiderate and overuse of cell phones including disturbing other people nearby and those using it not paying attention to what is happening around them. Those who use it quite often talk loud and those around them will talk even louder when in a shared space like a plane cabin. Chaos will tend to occur. This is not for the public good and the promotion of good will toward all.
